

Emergency Management Institute Announces EMI Transfer Credits for College Courses

The FEMA Emergency Management Institute (EMI) has executed an Articulation Agreement with the University of Maryland Global Campus (UMGC). Through this agreement, UMGC degree programs will accept EMI courses as transfer credit based upon the credit hour recommendations provided through EMI's accreditation with the American Council on Education (ACE).

If you are a current or former student at EMI, you can earn transfer credit for your coursework toward a bachelor's degree through the EMI-UMGC articulation agreement.

Highlights:

- More than 174 EMI courses and their various versions have been evaluated to save you time and money.
- UMGC's transfer policy allows for up to 90 credits to count toward a bachelor's degree from a variety of sources.

To apply or learn which courses have been evaluated for college credit, visit UMGC (<https://sites.umgc.edu/corporate/emi/index.cfm>).

To see the list of EMI courses that have been reviewed by ACE and their credit hour recommendations, visit the ACE National Guide (<https://www.acenet.edu/National-Guide/Pages/Organization.aspx?oid=4c099b28-9016-e811-810f-5065f38bf0e1>)

Points of Contact:

If you have any questions about this agreement, contact matthew.prager@fema.dhs.gov. If you would like to speak to a UMGC representative regarding transferring EMI credit to UMGC, e-mail cls@umuc.edu.

BULLETIN