Higher Education Updates

Message from Wendy Walsh, Higher Education Program Manager

Labor Day weekend was filled with a lot of activity for FEMA. The weather does not take holidays, and while here in Emmitsburg it was nice, much of our Nation was dealing with severe weather and flooding!

This week at EMI, the Training & Exercise Planning Workshop (TEPW) was convened. The gathering hosted representatives from every FEMA region and several supporting FEMA headquarters divisions with the purpose to develop the Multi-Year Exercise Management Plan. I was able to attend the first day and learned about the efforts of the Senior Leadership Coordination Group, the current status and use of the Threat Hazard Identification and Risk Assessment (THIRA), State Preparedness Report (SPR) data and the Lessons Learned and Continuous Improvement Program (LL/CIP). I listened to these briefs with a keen ear to listen for potential opportunities for the Higher Education Program Community to engage and contribute to these efforts.

I learned that there are opportunities for exercise role players and evaluators. While this might not be an ideal internship program, it could be a great opportunity for students to participate and learn from the perspective of a survivor. As a result, I am planning to follow up with my FEMA colleagues to discuss potential opportunities. To help with this meeting, I would be very interested in learning more about any engagement you have with exercises in your areas as well as any ideas of how you would like to be more engaged. Please send me an email with your experiences and stories!
