

Clemson University – Certificate in Emergency Management

Clemson University offers a Certificate in Emergency Management through its Masters in Public Administration Program. The program is geared towards working professionals and current practitioners and is offered synchronously online using Zoom and Canvas technology. This program allows students to engage and network with faculty and other professionals while also having the convenience of an online platform. Courses are offered in a traditional semester format and most meet in a virtual classroom one evening per week.

The certificate program requires the completion of 12 total credit hours or 4 courses. Students choose 3 courses (9 credit hours) that are directly related to Emergency Management and may then choose 1 elective course (3 credit hours) from the MPA course offerings.

The program charges a flat tuition rate whether the student has residency in or out of state.

Choose 3 (9 credit hours):

- PADM 8510 Fundamentals of Emergency Management - 3 credit(s)
