

Columbia Southern University - Bachelor of Science in Homeland Security

Columbia Southern University offers a Bachelor of Science Degree in Homeland Security. The Bachelor of Science degree in Homeland Security presents an academic foundation which will allow graduates to lead efforts to achieve a safe, secure, and resilient homeland. This program provides students with the knowledge to counter terrorism and enhance our national security; secure and manage our borders; enforce and administer our immigration laws; protect cyber networks and critical infrastructure; and ensure resilience from disasters. By the end of the program, students will have the ability to provide essential support to national and economic security and the homeland security enterprise.
