Metropolitan College of New York – Associate of Arts and Bachelor of Arts in Emergency Management & Business Continuity

The Metropolitan College of New York offers an Associate of Arts and a Bachelor of Arts in Emergency Management & Business Continuity. Both programs meet the professional development needs of individuals who would like to advance their existing careers or pursue new careers within homeland security, emergency management, business continuity, disaster recovery, project management, and international humanitarian emergency response. They are also designed to meet the needs of individuals seeking a career change and high school graduates looking to enter this growing new industry.

The curriculum includes foundational general education courses and courses offering comprehensive exposure to the basics of Emergency management and Business Continuity. The faculty includes working professionals who ensure that students learn best practices from industry leaders who deal with disasters and disruptions on a daily basis. This broad-based approach, coupled with integrated field experiences, on-site certification courses, and participation in large scale city-wide Emergency Management exercises, makes for a foundational degree that graduates can take anywhere.

The accelerated structure of the programs will make it possible for students to earn an Associate’s degree in just sixteen months and a Bachelor’s degree in just two years and eight months.
