

Online Master of Human Services in Child Protection with a specialty track in Emergency Preparedness for Vulnerable Populations

Nova Southeastern University's Department of Justice and Human Services offers an online Master of Human Services in Child Protection with a specialty track in Emergency Preparedness for Vulnerable Populations. The Emergency Preparedness for Vulnerable Populations Specialty Track will provide competency-based child protective services instruction aimed at closing the gap between ground level on-the-job training and scientifically grounded best-practices. It will develop the critical knowledge, values, and skills necessary for child protection professionals to respond effectively to complex problems confronting children and families in the child protective services system. Students will complete the forty-two credit hour program that includes core courses, specialty track courses, and research and electives courses.

The Master of Human Services in Child Protection is a 42-credit hour program. To earn a concentration in Emergency Preparedness for Vulnerable Populations requires 12 credit hours of courses in disaster and emergency management from NSU's Master of Science in Disaster and Emergency Management program.
